Hungarian World Bus & DX-Pedition These were intended to be used as part of articulated The Hungarian World Bus & DX-Pedition or Globexpedition (in Hungarian: Globexpedíció), also known by the radio call sign HA5BUS and its variations, was a DX-pedition with the aim of traveling around the globe with a bus. Gyáregység, "Custom-made Bus Division"), who have shown the team two mothballed Cummins LTA10-B 290H engines. The participants were three Hungarian men, all licensed amateur radio (or "ham") operators; bus driver Gábor Kovács (nicknamed "Gabi", call sign: HG5BKG), Volánbusz mechanical engineer István Hemberger ("Pista", HG5CHI) and Rádiózás magazine's then chief editor. The expedition lasted 614 days from 23 October 1991 to 27 June 1993, and its team traveled through or visited places in Hungary, the Soviet Union (which was in the process of dissolution at the time), Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, India, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Singapore, Australia, the United States, Canada, Germany and Austria

The method is used for measuring electrophoretic mobility, from which zeta potential can then be calculated. Instruments for applying the method are commercially available from several manufacturers. The last set of calculations requires information on viscosity and dielectric permittivity of the dispersion medium; appropriate electrophoresis theory is also required. Sample dilution... The River Rouge Complex manufactured most of the components of Ford vehicles, starting with the Model T. Much of the production was devoted to compiling "knock-down kits" that were then shipped in wooden crates to Branch Assembly locations across the United States by railroad and assembled locally, using local supplies as necessary. A few of the original Branch Assembly locations still remain while most have been repurposed or have been demolished and the land reused. Knock-down kits were also shipped...

Voluntary childlessness ""This Is the Little Power That I Can Take Back": Voluntary childlessness or childfreeness is the active choice not to have children and not to adopt children. Archived from the original on December 18, 2023. In the research literature, the term child-free or childfree has also been used to refer to parents currently not living with their children, for example because they have already grown up and. The suffix -free refers to the freedom and personal choice of those to pick this lifestyle. The meaning of the term childfree extends to encompass the children of others (in addition to one's own children), and this distinguishes it further from the more usual term childless, which is traditionally used to express the idea of having no children, whether by choice or by circumstance. Cummins, Eleanor (July 29, 2022). Retrieved March 12, 2024. Use of the word childfree was first recorded in 1901 and entered common usage among feminists during the 1970s 85ec8c3f3e
