Consciousness Proposed solutions can be divided broadly into two categories: dualist solutions that maintain Descartes's rigid distinction Consciousness, at its simplest, is awareness of a state or object, either internal to oneself or in one's external environment. Opinions differ about what exactly needs to be studied or even considered consciousness. Today, it often includes any kind of cognition, experience, feeling, or perception. In some explanations, it is synonymous with the mind, and at other times, an aspect of it. However, its nature has led to millennia of analyses, explanations, and debate among philosophers, scientists, and theologians. In the past, it was one's "inner life", the world of introspection, of private thought, imagination, and volition. has gained general acceptance.
