The first attestation of the French form of the name known to Elliott Coues was in the writing of the Vérendrye brothers, who in 1738 wrote of "La Fourche des Assiliboiles". According to Coues, the name "the Forks" had become established in English by the end of the eighteenth century. The place-name arises from the largely North American usage of the noun fork to mean "the point at which a river divides into two, or the point of junction of two rivers; a branch or tributary". According to Geographical Names of Manitoba, "the plural form is used because two rivers [...] merge here. If a single river splits into two branches, the singular 'fork' is more properly used". b032bc8f3a == History == b032bc8f3a Ward's creation is based on his 2007 short film that aired on Nicktoons as a pilot on Frederator's Random! The storyline was inspired by the Cthulhu Mythos of H. P. Lovecraft and the work of directors like Dario Argento and George A. Romero. Raynal's programming team worked to convey much of this story via key texts scattered about the game's environment. To overcome technical limitations, the production team also employed a fixed camera angle system to dramatically frame the movement of three-dimensional characters on top of two-dimensional background images. b032bc8f3a

Brigid of Kildare Fonseca, Anthony J. 525) is the patroness saint (or 'mother saint') of Ireland, and one of its three national saints along with Patrick and Columba.
